

Social Skills for Teens

Do you want your kids to “stand out” in life because they are polite, confident, and have good social skills?

The scientific journal, Child Development, released an analysis of 33 studies which found that, “Teaching kids social and emotional skills leads to an average 11 percentile point gain in their academic performance. The study also found that the skills help students form bonds with their teachers and peers.

“Social skills and etiquette are becoming diminished as social media ramps up. I believe classes like this give students the tools they need to increase their self-esteem and confidence that will ultimately serve them for a lifetime.”

~ Jacquie Hansen, former President of
The Alberta School Board Association
